

Child Born After Visa Issuance

Home / Visas / Immigrant Visas: After the Visa Interview / Child Born After Visa Issuance

- 1. Overview
- 2. Validity Period of the Visa
- 3. Child Born After Visa Issuance
- 4. Applicants with Ineligibilities
- 5. Entry on an Immigrant Visa
- 6. Entry on a K Visa
- 7. Pay the USCIS Immigrant Fee
- 8. A Guide for New Immigrants

If your child is born after the issuance of your immigrant visa s/he will not need a visa to accompany you provided you both travel within the period of validity of your visa. You are required to carry a copy of your child's long-form birth certificate for presentation to an immigration officer at the port of entry, together with a valid travel document for the child.

If you hold a K-1 or K-3 visa your child will require a valid visa in order to travel.

Please note: If the child's natural parent is a U.S. citizen, your child could have claim to American citizenship and his/her eligibility for citizenship must be determined before traveling

